

Appendix D – Re-Application Form for Subsequent Year Award(s)

Energy efficiency projects that reduce NOx emissions can be expected to continue reducing NOx for the life of the project, although the energy savings may decrease with time. Project sponsors may apply for NOx allowances annually for a period of five years.

The reapplication form is simpler than the initial application form but still must include an attestation by a professional engineer and it must be submitted by the project's authorized NOx account representative by the last business day of November.

If there have been modifications to the original project or to monitoring and verification procedures, the project sponsor must provide information concerning the modifications and their impact on the quantity of NOx emission reductions claimed during the summer ozone season. In addition, the sponsor must provide full information about any new EE/RE sites that have been added to the aggregate project.
